

Dear Parents,

My name is Linda Stancil and I am thrilled to be part of the Gingerbread family. I started out working with school age children in 1977 in my hometown of Garner. I was only 17 at the time. After spending time with kids, taking them on field trips and just having fun with them, I knew in my heart that was my calling. I was mentored by many teachers in the years to come and finally decided to get my Associates Degree in Education at Wake Technical Community College. I then became a teacher of my own class of four year olds. A few years later I was promoted to Assistant Director then Director. I went back to college at UNC Greensboro and received my Bachelor Degree in Education. I have been a director for over 25 years. In those years I have trained many teachers and assistant directors. I am now proud to be a mentor to someone who made need it in education. I have two beautiful grown daughters that went through childcare with me as they grew up. Now I am the proud Nanna of two handsome grandsons that attend Gingerbread Littleversity. Adam is in the toddler room and Carson is in the four year class. They both love their teachers and it shows. The staff are nurturing and compassionate towards all the children.

Childcare has changed over the years but children never do. In childcare I have worn many hats from driving a van, cooking in the kitchen, teaching a classroom, relieving for lunch breaks, greeting parents and helping an injured child. The list is never ending. That is what makes it so much fun. Your schedule could change daily and there is never a dull moment. We will never become rich as a teacher but the rewards exceed all expectations when it pertains to a child and what I have taught them at the end of the day.

I am very proud to be part of this family business here at Gingerbread Littleversity.

Sincerely,

Linda Stancil, Director
